PSC208 Survey of State & Local Government 3 Credits

Prerequisite: None. Recommended completion or corequisite of ENG 100 or ENG 101 Survey of the organization, working principles and functional processes of state and local governments in the United States, including Nevada. Satisfies the Nevada Constitution requirement. Examines governing institutions such as city councils, school boards and state legislatures whose decisions immediately impact our everyday lives. Specific attention is given to civic engagement, i.e., the different ways that people may participate within our democratic system to change communities for the better. This course is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the structure and function of state and local governments. It covers the historical development of these governments, their legal foundations, and the various levels of government (state, county, city, and local). The course also explores the role of citizens in the democratic process, including civic participation and the impact of public opinion on government actions. Students will gain insight into the complexities of governance and the challenges faced by public officials. This course is a required component of the Political Science major and is highly recommended for students interested in public service, law, or political research.
